

Will you have enough money to retire?

If you're contributing a percentage of your income into your 401(k) account each pay period, you'll be better prepared than half of the American population, according to recent research. But, even if you're saving, do you wonder whether you'll have enough at retirement age to retire comfortably?

A new feature in your account statement from T. Rowe Price can help you get a better idea of what your monthly income will look like at retirement. Starting with your second-quarter statement, you'll have a report showing your projected monthly income at retirement based on your current contributions and investment mix.

This will help you start thinking about the amount of income you will have at retirement and whether it will be enough to meet your needs. If it looks like you will come up short, check out the projection showing the impact of an additional contribution amount each month. There's no time like the present to prepare for the future.

- For more information, visit www.troweprice.com.
- Once you have logged in go to Planning Tools to learn more.